WILL SELL MATCHES. The Goulds' New Method of Making a Living.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Not satisfied with owning a large share of the railroads of the country, and holding a monopoly of the telegraph lines, the Goulds are preparing to enter the field of manufac-tures, and compete with one of the bigges commercial monopolies in this country— the Diamond Match Trust. Edwin A. Gould's name appears in the articles of incorporation of a new com-pany, which was filed in Trenton, N. J., September 1, by the secretary and treas-urer of the new corporation, Lieut-Col. Downes of this city. The new organiza-tion is called the Continental Match Com-pany, and has offices in Temple Coust and a plant selected on Bloomfield avenue, Passalc, N. J. According to its charter, it is formed for the "manufacture of matches and other wooden articles;" capital stock, $1,000,000; president, Edwin A. Gould; vice-president, W. F. Hutchinson; secretary and treasurer, Wallaco A. Downes.

New match-making machines will be used. Each is slightly larger than a and all that seems necessary to make matches is to feed a rolf of veneered wood in one end of the machine, and match splits, all cut, fly out of the other, at the rate of 150,000 a minute. Hutchinson, the inventor, who is a direct descendant of Robert Fulion, the inventor of the steam-boat, said briefly about his inventions: "These match machines are patented in every country on the globe, and are fully protected. How much they are in ad-vance of other match-making machines, I can show you by telling you that the high-est speed attained by any machine is 8000 matches a minute."

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.

LONDON, Sept. 20. — (By Atlantic Cable.) A dispatch from Tien-Tsin says that from Chinese officers with spatches, who have arrived there, and later messages from Port Arthur, a full narrative of the naval battle of Yalu is obtained. Admiral Ling, commanding the Chinese northern squadron, was in-structed by the Council of War to onvoy six transports and to land the troops, guns and stores at Yu-Chow, from which base China intended to enew operations in Korea. The battleships Ting-Yuen, Chen-Yuen, King-Yuen, Ping-Yuen, Li-Yuen, and Tsi-Yuen, and the cruisers Chi-Yuen, Ching-Yuen, Chao-Yuen, Yang-Wei, Kwang-Kai and Wang-Tin, togethe with four torpedo-boats, escorted the transports. They arrived at the entrance of the Yalu River early on Monday morning and the disembarkation proceeded rapidly, the transports steaming into the river while the warships anchored outside. 'At 11 o'clock, smoke on the borizon indicated the approach of a large flotilla. The stuation was grasped immediately, and Admiral Ling gave orders for the weighing of anchors and the placing of the ships in battle orders for the weighing of anchors and the placing of the ships in battle array. His position was a difficult one. If he remained near the shore his movements/would be cramped, and if he steamed out for sea-room he ran the risk of a Japanese torpedo-boat running in among his transports. He chose the lesser of the two evils and formed a fighting line to guard the estuary in single column in the following order, from port to starboard: Yang-Wei, Chen-Yuen, Tsi-Yuen, King-Yuen, Ting-Yuen, Li-Yuen, Chi-Yuen, Ping-Yuen, Ching-Yuen, and Chao-Yuen, As a second digarang line and to meet any Japanese ship which might succeed in forcing the fighting line, the Kwang-Kai and Wang-Fin, with four torpedo-boats, were stationed at the mouth of the river. The Japanese fleet approached at full speed until within range. Then they advanced in columns, forming into two lines, Nine ironclad cruisers formed the fighting line, while three gunboats and five torpedo-boats formed the second line. Firing commenced forthwith.

Firing commenced forthwith.

The guns on both sides were The guns on both sides were worked unceasingly at long range and the hits were infrequent. The Japanese crept close and the gunners made better progress. The Ting-Yuen was the first to suffer, a shell bursting in her battery. From the outset, the Japanese directed a powerful fire upon the Chinase hattleships. Chen Yen, and The nese battleships Chen-Yuen and Ting-Yuen. For ninety minutes, a terrific cannonade was continued. The result was that one Japanese cruiser, re-ported to have been the Salko, was placed out of action. One Chinese-offi-cer declared he saw her sink.

Meantime, the two big guns on the Chen-Yuen were disabled, and the other ships showed signs of damage. other ships showed signs of damage. Both fleets were under easy steam the Japanese maneuvering, while the Chinese held their original positions. Suddenly two of the Japanese cruisers sought to break through the Chinese line on the starboard side. Three torpedo-boats swiftly pursued them. The Chen-Yuen and Ching-Yuen went at full speed astern to avoid a catastrophe. The boats fired their torpedoes, but the nets about the Japanese cruisfull speed astern to avoid a catastrophe. The boats fired their torpedoes, but the nets about the Japanese criusers stopped them. Meantime other gurs were brought to bear upon the cruisers, which are believed to have been the Akitsushima and the Yoshimo. They were beaten back by the weight of metal in an almost helpless state, and Chinese officers declare, both state, and Chinese officers declare both sank.

The Chinese had fared little better. for the Ching-Yuen had been several times hulled and pierced upon the water-line, while the Cheu-Yuen had stranded while trying to evade the Japanese torpedo-boats. All attempts to float her had been frustrated by the to noat her had been trustrated by the fire directed against her. Finally she burst into flames from shells. The big guns on the Chang-Yuen were disabled, but she remained in the fighting line, working her suffaller and machine-guns. The Tsi-Yuen retired to beyond the lines and the King-Yuen reset in a teartille plight. A shell burset was in a terrible plight. A shell burst through her decks and set fire to her, and with the flames bursting from her and with the flames bursting from her she slowly settled.

A score of times the Japanese sought to break through the Chinese line, but until the last the Chinese guns were able to stop them, and the Japanese never reached the transports. The Chinese vessels gave way before the attacks, and while doing so the Yang-Wol strended stern first. Her fate was similar to that of the Chen-Yuen.

The Chi-Yuen was nothing more than a wallowing wreck when struck by a

The Chi-Yuen was nothing more than a wallowing wreck when struck by a torpedo, and she sank with all on board. The scene was now appalling. The guns on several of the ships on both sides were disabled and the great ships rolled heavily. The streams of green water pouring from most of them showed the steam pumps were working incessantly, and testified to the extent of the damage inflicted. Some of the Chinese ships had exhausted their ammunition during the last hours of the fighting.

More than one of the Japanese vessels seemed to be on the point of foundering. It was not until dark, however, that the firing ceased and the battered Japanese fleet departed in double-line formation.

Toward morning, the remnants of the Chinese fleet, with six transports, started for Port Arthur, which was safely reached. The damage to the Chinese ships is so extensive that it can scarcely be repaired before winter. The officers say that both sides showed the most furious courage.

A private report from Shanghai de-A private report from Shanghai declares these vessels were not sunk, as the Chinese claim, but were retired from action, disabled. It is reported the Chinese transport Toonan was sunk after she landed troops, but this is thought to be incorrect. The report that Admiral Ling and Col. Von Hannekin were severely wounded seems to be incorrect, for they have both returned to duty.

LOST FIVE VESSELS.

TOKIO, Sept. 20.—An official dispatch from the headquarters of the Japanese fleet says the latter at 1 o'clock on September 16 met eleven Chinese warships and six torpedo-boats, thirty-five miles northeast of Hai-Yang-Ton, with the result that four Chinese ships were sunk and one burned. The dispatch adds that the Japanese fleet sustained no damage. THE PING-YANG BATTLE.

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 20.—Particulars eceived regarding the battle of Ping-Yang show the Chinese lost 2000 killed and 14,500 wounded and captured. A and 14,500 wounded and captured. A fourth part of the Chinese army escaped. The Japanese loss was only about 11 officers wounded and 260 soldiers killed. The Japanese army is marching on Wiju, which it is expected will be reached by the end of September.

THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON. WASHINGTON, Sept. 20. - Neither he Chinese nor the Japanese legations have received any advices as to the great naval engagement off Yalu. Lieut. Miyoaka, the naval attache of Lieut. Miyoaka, the naval attache of the Japanese Legation, returned today from an Eastern trip. He is well acquainted with the scene of battle and says it is so far removed from the Japanese telegraph stations that word would first have to be carried by dispatch-boats to Tushima or Nagasaki, before the Tokio authorities could be informed of the battle. As the fight occurred hast Saturday, it is expected that dispatch boats will have the official version transmitted very soon. The Japanese officials here are much clated over the latest reports, as they clated over the latest reports, as they say the sinking of China's big battle-ship, the Chen-Yuen, fatally cripples China's navy.

A JAPANESE ACCOUNT.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Tokio dated today says that the naval department has received a dispatch from the admiral commanding the Japanese fleet in the Gulf of Chi-Li to the effect that he engaged the enemy on Monday last and in-flicted heavy loss. A Japanese fleet con-sisting of nine warships and two fast trans-ports armed and converted into cruisers, had been in search of the enemy's fleet, which was sighted at noon Monday, thirty-miles east of the Island of Hai-Yung-Pao. The Japanese pursued the enemy at full lasted until nightfall. Three Chinese ships were successfully disabled and sunk, and one was set on fire and destroyed.

Several of the enemy's warships were seriously damaged by the heavy fire. The Japanese warships were so well handled that not one was lost. Only two were damaged to any creek extent but one of the aged to any great extent, but one of th armed transports was badly crippled and put out of action. The admiral does not mention the number of killed or wounded. A private telegram says that twenty-two Japanese officers and men were killed and forty-six wounded.

IT WAS QUEER.

Conduct of the Detectives in the Gorin Train-robbery.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20.—James P. Wright, an old railroad brakeman, who lives at Fort Madison, Iowa, where Engineer Prescott of the Santa Fe train, which was stopped by train-robbers near Gorin, Mo., a couple of nights ago, was taken after being wounded, had a long talk with Prescott

"He told me," said Wright, "that the battle between the supposed train-robbers and the detectives was very queer, and that he would never have been wounded if the detectives had met the men who stepped on the engine with a well-directed shot. Prescott said it was very strange that the detectives did not kill some of the would-be train-robbers. Further than that, he said that after he was shot, he pointed to one man, who was standing so close to the engine that he could have knocked him down with a lump of coal if his arms had not been rendered useless by his wound, and shouted to the detectives: 'Why don't you shoot that fel-low?' Then, he said, the detectives fired several shots at the man, and he noticed that the gun barrels were all pointed away above a level with the man's head."

Robert J. Fails to Beat His Record.

GALESBURG (III.,) Sept. 20.—But ne record was broken today, and that was by Salisbury's wonderful twoyear-old pacer Directly, who sent the wo-year-old record from 2:09 to 2:07 3-4, and at the same time reduced his own record 2 1-4 seconds. thousand enthusiastic people witnessed the event. It was the second special event of the afternoon, following Robert J.'s failure to reduce his record. The track was fast and the weather superb.

Directly got away on the first and McDowell drove him. He had the pole just behind him with a thoroughbred running-mate. The pace was a remarkable one, showing a steady improvement. The first quarter one in 0:32 the half in 1:04 1-2 the hird in 1:36 and the mile in 2:07 3-4. When Williams made the announce ment, there were loud cries for Mc-Dowell, the famous driver, who was obliged to go up in the grandstand and acknowledge the ovation.

It was 5:10 o'clock when Robert J. was sent off on a second scoring. In a warming heat he had made the circuit in 2:11, and many thought he cuit in 2:11, and many thought he would pace a great mile, even if he failed to beat his own record. Ed Geers was the driver. In the judges' stand was John H. Leash of Goshen, Ind., the owner of Online, the fast four-year-old pacer. Chandler drove the running-mate. Robert J. made the first quarter in 0:30 and expectation ran high. The half was made in 1:00 1-2, but in the third quarter the great stallion slowed up, making the pole in 1:31 3-4. The mile was covered in 2:92 3-4. Driver Geers assigned as the reasons for the failure of the pacer, namely, that the track was a trifle too hard for Robert J.'s feet, and that he was fearful of the crowd that filled the entire track, except a few feet from the pole.

Online was then sent to beat his record of 2:07 1-4. He went a strong, steady mile, equalling his record without-apparent effort. The quarters were made in 0:32 1-2, 0:32, 0:32 1-4 and 0:32 1-4, or 2:07 1-4 for the mile The other events of the afternoon were unusually good.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

New York Exporters and California

dated Press Leased-wire Service. NEW YORK, Sept. 20 .- "The exportation of California fruit has been abandoned for an indefinite period," said Horace E. Day of Sgobel & Day, extensive export-ers of fruit, to a reporter last night. Two years ago experimental trainload ship-ments were made, with unsatisfactory re-sults. Last year the shipments were years ago experimental trainload shipments were made, with unsatisfactory results. Last year the shipments were omitted, but they were resumed this year, when three shipments of about nine tarloads, each averaging over ten tons for each carload, were made, but with still worse results. The fruit came by special freight trains from Sacramento to New York, was transferred to fast steamships here, and sent from Southampton by special train to London, where it was found on arrival that it was overripe and could not be sold.

"The California fruit exported consists mainly of pears, peaches and plums, which come into competition with the prolific crops of European small fruit, and heavy losses to the shippers resulted. The immense and rapidly increasing production of California fruits furnishes a problem of the most difficult solution, as to how and where we may find adequate outlets for its distribution."

A BLOCK IN TRADE. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—There is a block in the dried-fruit trade, which should be in full activity at this time. A large section of the growers are holding out for better prices than rule in the San Fran-cièco market, and, to add to the perplexity of the commission merchants, telegraph orders are being received from the East at figures that will not permit them being filled.

at ngures that will not permit them being filled.

This condition of affairs has produced a tension between the fruit-deafers and the horticulturists which has led to an acrimonious discussion between the Fruit Exchange, representing the opposing interests. Accusations of depressing the Eastern markets for the purpose of speculation are made against the city marchants, while they charge that the policy pursued by the country element is bringing disaster on the industry. This lamentable condition of affairs is well known east of the Missouri and is being taken full advantage of in orders.

The growers this season are in a measure independent of the San Francisco fruit-houses. By the formation of local exchanges they have been able to obtain advances from the country banks, which they are not called upon to repay at once, and they threaten, through the California Fruit Exchange, to deal directly with brokers in Eastern towns at shigher prices than are quoted by the Fruit Produce Exchange. In the Santa Clara Valley, Vaca-ville and Winters districts they are piling up their fruit in warehouses. Somema, Napa and some of the southern counties are, however, selling through the San Francisco merchants. It is stated at the California Fruit Exchange that the policy pursued by the local exchanges has been pushed too far, and may lead to loss. The recommendation sent out from the central body to the local exchanges was to sell the lower grades of fruit at current prices, and to hold on to the higher. Instead, all kinds are being held for an advance of from 1 to 3 cents a pound, according to the kind and quality of the fruit. The commission merchants say they have been forced, in the absence of orders, to become speculators to a certain extent. They assert that they have always furnished advances to the growers, standing the interest and the loss on rejection of goods on a falling market, and their wreth at being charged with thlevery by a San Francisco paper, knows no bounds. He found that the miners of the Commissioner Murray Complains of DENVER, Sept. 20.—Joseph Murray, Fish Commissioner for Alaska, who has just returned from a trip to that country in company with Assistant Secretary Hamilin of the Treasury Department, said in an interview today:

Y''Unless some steps are taken there will shortly be no fur-bearing animals in Alaska. The adventurers who ficck in there are rapidly exterminating the animals and the companies who are canning salmon are no better. A party goes on an island with a supply of strychnine. Bait is poisoned and the foxes eat it. They are skinned and a stake is made. The carcasses are eaten by crows and the birds die. Foxes that missed the poisoned bait eat the poisoned birds and in a short time there is not a fox on the island.

"The seal fisheries are fast playing out. I've years ago there was no trouble in getting 100,000 skins. This year, though allowed to take 20,000 skins, the company only succeeded in getting 16,000. The salmon-fishers spread their nets at the mouth of the river up which the fish endeavor to go in order to spawn. Every one is taken, and, as a result, there are no young fish. and; and he also ravors the enlargement of the one already at the latter place. If the two new ones proposed to be constructed and the one now in use is enlarged, it is believed that the dock facilities of the Pacific Coast, now that the new one on Puget Sound is approaching completion, will be sufficient for the needs of the service for some time.

As for San Diego, its harbor is of the first importance, as being the southermost one of the country on the Pacific Coast, and it would also be convenient for vessels returning from South and Central America and needing docking. As to the size of these docks, the commodore will recommend that they all be of the largest class, because of the tendency to increase the size of ships. The beam of the Oregon and other vessels just completed exhibits the tendency to increase the capacity of vessels. Col. Graham of the Fifth United States Artillery has eent in a copy of his report on military operations at Sacramento, to be used as evidence in the case. Graham highly compliments the National Guard troops and their officers for their conduct after the United States troops had arrived at Sacramento. Gen. Dickinson is especially commended.

adopted by the United Typothetae of America last night. The matter was brought up in the convention by President McFetridge, who pointed out the disadvantages of the present system of "em" standard of measure. It was referred to a committee of three. The committee recommended the adoption of a system of measurement, with the whole alphabet as a standard, a system that would be equitable to both employee and employers. It was stated that this system permitted the accurate measure of work actually done, and customers could be made to understand that the use of bold-face type would cost more than narrow-faced. There is no intention of reducing wages.

In connection with the job printing carried on by the United States government in the printing of envelopes, it was suggested that the printers throughout the country co-operate with the Typothetae for its abolition, by signing petitions to Congress to that effect. North at the expiration of their Sacramento engagement.

Secreatry Eugene Schmidt of the local Musicians' Union received a telegram from R. E. Landers, secretary of the Tacoma union, stating: 'Notify the members not to come here for Interstate Fair. No salary.' It is said $1200 was the amount due the musicians according to the rules of the organization and until that amount is paid no work can be done by union men. Schmirdt notified the members of the band and greatly worried, Cassassa wired for information.

Today forty excited musicians debated over the following telegram received in reply:

"A lot of bum musicians, who never filled their contract, struck because I was engaging you. Their time was not up until next week. Always paid them promptly. Only part of the week's salary coming to them new. Can pay them any minute, but they must settle loss as percentract first. Have deposited money ($1500) for transportation both ways with Southern Pacific agent here. Take trais and be here on Saturday sure. Answer at once. Other union bands want to come. (Signed.) "J. ANTHONY GORMAN."

"Assistant Director-General."
For the five weeks' engagement Cassassa was promised $7500, and the fight between "love and duty" was a hard one. Five principal soloists refused point blank to go, but when the Oregon express pulled out of the Oakland Mole at 7:30 o'clock this evening all of the instrumentalists were on hand but one. Twenty Persons Injured by the Fall Associated Press Leaset-wire Service.

AKRON (O.,) Sept. 20.—Twenty young men were more or less seriously injured last night by the falling of a large wooden platform between the Vagel Block, south of Main street, and a building directly in the rear. The most seriously hurt are: Harvey Denaple, leg broken; Walter Perdue, back broken; Edward Swinson, head and face cut.

The announcement that the Excelsion Athletic Club would give a free entertainment in its hall on the third story of the rear building, had attracted quite a crowd to the place. The doors were not open when the crowd began to arrive and some were obliged to stand on a wooden platform, which connected the two structures. This platform was forty feet from the ground and the strain upon it proved too great and with a crash that could be heard blocks away, it fell, carrying 100 people with it. They were buried under the heavy timbers and a few were unconscious when taken out, but no one was killed.

THE IRON TRADE.

A Gloomy Prospect for the Immediate Future.

Associated Press Laused wire Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Iron Agotoday says that an undertone of disappointment is creeping into the market reports from the leading centers, and the outlook is again assuming a sombre hue. The simple fact is the consumption has not expanded enough lately in the iron trade to keep the active mills from engaging in a continuous scramble for work. The iron trade cannot hope for any sustained improvement until the railroad retained improvement until the railroad requirements come out.

There is a nervous feeling about Bessemer pig and steel billets. Both have been weakened, but are not down to the level which the rolling mills claim as fair when the current prices of finished steel are considered. Plates are again demoralized and very low prices are being made by some of the works. Steel bars have been selling at unprecendented low figures. One bright spot is the activity in the cast from pipe trade, the majority of the shops being busy.

THE SOLAROMETER.

Lieut. Beehler, U.S.N., and His Wonderful Instrument.

Associated Press Loased-wire Service.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 20. — Life Baltimore. Sept. 20.— Lieutenant Beehler, U.S.N., has arrived from Bremen with his solarometer, which was tested on the voyage, and which he exhibited in Germany and France. Lieut. Beehler and the officers of the Weimar, the steamship on which he sailed, took 189 observations of the sun and stars at all hours of the day and night, and the latitude, longitude and compass errors were ascertained by the solarometer with accuracy.

Lieut. Beehler took the solarometer Paris, where he explained it to M. Gethier, the celebrated Paris astronomical strument-maker, who has a contract fimaking the solarometers in France. If request, Lieut. Beehler exhibited the solarometers to the officers of the French navin Paris. The North German Lloyd Steamship Company is interested in the solarometer, and the firm of William Liudolph in Berlin has begun to manufacture solarometers for that country.

In the German naval observatory in Hamburg the professors and astronomers evinced the greatest interest in the instrument, and expressed their approval of its principles and their admiration of its mechanical design. The solarometer on board the Weimar will be taken to Washington to serve as a standard for six solarometers, now in course of construction in Baltimore. One of them has been ordered by the Navy Department, and will probably be mounted on the armored cruiser New York.

AN AUTUMN MODIFICATION OF THE POLONAISE.

From Our Regular New York Fashion Corre-From Our Regular New rork rasmon correspondent.)

For the woman of much dignity and grace of carriage, be she young or not, the fall models present a beautiful design, which is a modification of the polonaise, of itself always a graceful garment. It is out short to the hip line in the back, at the sides there are long panels, which reach to the hem of the skirt, and are one with the sides of the bodice. The latter turns away with points from the shoul-der line, from a chemisette and vest front of gathered chiffon. A little folded belt marks the joining of the vest and skirt, which latter shows between the panels in front. The skirt hangs with almost a demi-train.

Another graceful fall costume is depicted in the accompanying illustration. It is composed of ombre taffets, and has an ample-gored skirt ladd in great pleats in the back, which are held in place by an elastic sewed to the inner side. The bodice has fitted fining, but the upper stuff is draped, as shown, and fastens at the side. The drapery is made of contrasting material, and is bordered with narrow gold and jeweled galoon. The back is plain, as are the short-puffed sleeves that are met by long tan gloves. The draped portion is held in place by fancy stick plus.

Of a third the size of this, but equally as fashlomable, is the other dress in the picture. It is of pink surah, iald in box pleats, back and front; and sewed to a square yoke, covered with cream guspure. The pleats are held in place at the waist and hem by black satin ribbon, drewn through buttonholed slits. The gown is finished by a short jacket, having a deep collar of black lace, and puffed sleeves, which end in lace-covered cuffs.

PROMOTION FROM THE RANKS. A San Francisco paper recently commented upon the extreme difficulty which is experienced by enlisted men in the army in obtaining a commission, however long and meritorious their service may have been, or however good the examination which they pass. The comments were founded on recent examination which was sucssfully passed by a number of enlisted men, only three or four of whom were accepted, the reason given for the rejection of the others being that their chest measurement was not sufficient—certainly a curious reason, when it is remembered that these men had already served for years in the ranks. It is difficult to see why a private should be required to have a greater chest measurement than an officer.

The fact is that West Pointers are as bitterly opposed to the promotion from the ranks as are the aristocratic officers of the English and German armies. The French private has far more chance in this respect than has the "common soldier" of the United States. It was the first Napoleon who said that every private soldier carried a field marshal's baton in his knapsack, and it was the realization of this possibility of advancement for merit that enabled the generals of the army of the first empire to accomplish such marvels with their men.

This manifestation of the class spirit in our army-and our navy, also, is not in accordance with the spirit of republican institutions, and undoubtedly serves to keep away from the military and naval service of the country thousands of respectable young men who cannot be attracted merely by the pittance which is paid to our country's defenders. The knowledge that almost insurerable difficulties will be thrown in the way of their rising from the ranks must act as a wet blanket upon young men who have any ambition, and tends to lower the morale of the entire force. It, perhaps, explains also, to some extent, why desertions from the Army have averaged in some years recently as high as 15 per cent., from the Navy 18 per cent, and from the Marine Corps (in 1891) the extraordinary proportion of 31 per cent.. defrom the latter beauch of the service having in no year been less than 20 per cent.

The knowledge that they would lave a fair chance of competing for a commission after a long term of meriterious service would undoubtedly attract a better class of men to the army and navy.

RATEROADS AND TRAMPS

In this great and sparsely settled country railroads are confronted with many problems that are unknown in Europe. One of the growing difficulties with which transportation companies in the United States have to contend is the increasing number and boldness of tramps. Scarcely a day passes that some outrage or accident from this source is not reported. Es pecially is this the case since the inauguration of the Coxey and other movements. Since then tramps have learned the benefit of combination and no larger confine emselves to moving over the country singly or in pairs, but journey in bands, with which trainmen find it difficult to cope.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, finding that the number of tramps carried by the company was almost as large as the number of passengers, determined to put a stop to such wholesale stealing of rides, and consequent deaths and robberies, and to this end ed special officers on trains and at terminals who, with the help of the trainmen, got the tramps before the cal magistrates. The scheme worked ell and the tramps ceased "working" that road, but with the least show of acy on part of the officials they otedly return. What is country is being Bartholomewed. the American spirit of toleration of mps has reached its limits. The that tramps are unfortunate gmen seeking employment is on want nothing less than work, bey are pests of society who grow after from year to year, and begin

The Times is in receipt of reliable information to the effect that C. L. Heartt, whose name will be recalled as one of the strikers and rioters who was under arrest during the late railroad strike, and barely escaped the clutches of the law in Judge Ross's court, has entered the field as a Demo cratic heeler in the county canvass He has made out a list containing from 500 to 1000 names of votersmembers of the A.R.U. and other un employed railroad men-whose votes he boasts that he is able to control and his game is to control them as best suits his purposes. These names are written in a book which Heart carries in his pocket. Most of the names are written with red ink, though some are in black. Those in red, Heartt claims, are pledged to vote as he dictates-to obey when he cracks the whip, like a drove of sheep. The names in black are doubtful, but Heartt expects to control the votes of most of them. Heartt proposes to vote these men for the Democratic ticket, and is said to have a pledge from a certain nominee on the Democratic county ticket to give him (Heartt) an appointment, if elected, as the price of his services. Heartt also expects to secure places for others among the late strikers by virtue of his political "pull," if he can succeed in pulling the Democratic ticket through by voting his dupes in a drove, according to the programme. It would be interesting know just what Democratic candidates are pledged to this scheme. There will be several minor places to be given out, after the election, and if these places are to be filled with the late strikers, the people of both parties are entitled to know it. No doubt a great many of the strikers, who voluntarily relinquished good-paying positions to go on a strike at the dictation of a few demagogic leaders, are nov very much in need of work; but there are also many deserving men who did not leave good positions to go on a strike, whose needs are as pressing as those of the strikers. And, besides men who allow themselves to be voted in droves may, as a general proposition, be set down as having some worthy motive in thus selling their birthright. Heartt and his gang will from Pullmantown," by "Nico Bech-Meyer," whoever or whatever that may be. It purports to be an account in the form of a story, of the conditions existing at the town of Pullman for some months preceding the strike. From whatever point of view it is re garded the book is an absolutely worthless contribution to the literature of the subject of which it essays to treat. From a literary point of view it is the vilest of hogwash, being without originality of thought or diction. without adequate plot or sequence, and ending with an anti-climax which forms a most ridiculous denouement. As a discussion of economic questions it is likewise without value or coherence, without point or meaning. It has evidently been thrown together by some literary cobbler, banking on the hope of selling his trash by reason of the free advertising which the town of Pullman received during the strike. People who buy and read such rubbish as is found in the pages of this book furnish an apt illustration of the aphorism that "a fool and his money are soon parted." You might bray them in a whole mortar-bed, or in a large mulada, and still they would be more kinds of a fool than even the

Henry Clews, the New York banker and financier, in reviewing the business and monetary situation, expresses the opinion that "the main matter around which interest centers is the currency question," and that "it is taken for granted that that issue must come up for settlement" at the next session of Congress, even though the session be a short one. The main needed is a better sense of duty on cause of uneasiness he declares to be part of local censtables and justices. "the possibility that both parties, owing to party competition, may bid for the votes of the Populists." He thinks the votes of the Populists." He thinks it not improbable that Congress may take up the question next December and put it through before the 4th of March, and expresses the hope that "it may be found possible to carry through before next March a measure that will get at root the allowant. that will set at rest the silver and flat money crazes, through putting our bank currency system upon a broader and more liberal and yet absolutely secure basis." In this optimistic hope the country at large will most heartily join, though it must be confessed that the outlook is none too encouraging.

It is announced by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Miller that the income tax will be collected for the entire calendar year 1894, and that it will fall due and be collectable on January 1 next. According to his construction of the law, all incomes earned or received during the present year in excess of $4000 are subject to taxation. The income tax act became a law on August 28, and it is doubtful whether the law can be made retroactive, so as to cover incomes earned or received prior to that date. The Constitution expressly forbids the passage of any ex post facto law. The income tax appears to be plainly ex post facto legislation, if Mr. Miller's construction is to be accepted. Its validity will be attacked on that ground, and the indications are that the attack will be successful, at least to the extent of overthrowing the retroactive provision. The law is a vicious enactment, and will be productive of perjury unspeakit is made easy to get a living and Local Democratic circles, squares and triangles are considerably agitated over the question whether J. Marion Brooks still has that $1000 stowed away in his inside pocket. J. F. Alexander, who declared that an attempt was made by Brooks to bribe him with that amount to withdraw from the Democratic ticket, does not claim that he saw the color of the coin, and subsequent events bear out his declaration. Now, who did get it? Where did it come from? And where is the coin now? Can it be that this was hard-earned Populist money, and that it was distributed among the Democratic delegates "where it would do the most good." A great many Democratic voters would like an explanation from J. Mary Ann Brooks,

The Sultan of Turkey has sent a donation of £300 for the relief of the sufferers by the forest fires in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan. This is indeed very generous of the Sultan. and the gift is duly appreciated. It isn't, perhaps, in very good taste to look a gift horse in the mouth, but if all reports be true, there are a great nany thousands of the subjects of the Sultan of Turkey who need help nearly or quite as badly as the vic tims of the lumber-woods fires.

There is not much probability that the spurt in the national revenues immediately following the enactment of the new tariff will hold out to the end of the year. The prediction is freely made by good financial authorities that a further issue of bonds, to the amount of $50,000,000, will be orlered soon after the fall elections. The administration will scrimp along some way until after the elections when it will probably grow reckless in the bitterness of defeat.

It is reported from Panama that a line of British-built steamers, flying the Mexican flag, is to be put on between San Francisco and the Pacific terminus of the Tehuantepec Railroad. Such a line, with regular trips, under whatever flag, ought to be of great benefit to the Pacific Coast, and especially to this part of the coast, when the new deep-water harbor at an Pedro is completed.

Bankers and Politicians.

There has just been issued from this office a large pamphlet with the title of "List of Tax-payers, Farmers, Producers, etc., in San Diego County, California, With Postoffice Addresses and Statistics of Land Under Cultivation, Trees, Vines, Grain and Hay: Also Amounts Taxable (Above Debts) to Each Person. Compiled from the Official Records." The publisher's introductory note says: "The practical information contained in the succeeding pages has been gathered and collated with care from the official records of San Diego county, Cal." The sale of the book will be necessarily limited, as it is only "designed for the use of merchants, bankers, commercial agencies, commission men, manufacturers, jobbers, traveling salesmen, agents, solicitors, canvassers, political committees" and other persons having use for this particular class of information. It is noted as a significant fact that the average attendance at Democratic meet-ings in the present campaign has been the smallest known since the war. Somehow tile brethren are not taking much in-terest in politics this year. There are good reasons for their indifference. (San Francisco Chronicle:) Democratic finance in this country is like the peace of God, in that it passes all understanding. Whether it has in the treasury a surplus or deficit it is equally flurried and flustered and alarmed. If there be a surplus it portends national disaster and universal bankruptcy; if there be a deficit the one lone, solitary financial scheme and idea of the Democratic party is to borrow money to make the account good. (Bakersfeld Caifornian:) The Legislature of 1888 was Democratic and the appropriations were 412,533,010, giving a taxrate of 72 cents. In 1890 the Republicans carried the Legislature and the appropriations were only $9,748,596, with a taxrate of only 43.6 cents. In 1892 the Democrats carried the lower house, giving them the Legislature on joint ballot, and straightway the appropriations rose to $11,792,573. If they carry the State this fall (which they will not) it is reasonable to look for a still greater increase in the appropriations.

But as he is not a farmer, but a lawyer, who chooses to pose as a "hay-seed," and a buffoon in politics, they will not be disposed to lay awake nights to compose compliments about him. This foolish "hayeed" play will simply disgust them, for whenever a candidate for the responsible position of Governor of a great State appeals to any class of reasonable men by means that should be considered unworthy of the dignity of one who nobly aspires to such an honor, he offends them and certainly injures himself.

It was early in March when the vessel sailed, and the only tidings of her was when Capt. Thompson of the schooner Mary C. Olsen was on the deck of the schooner during the whole night at sea, and he says that the storm that toased the little ship about was the worst that he had experienced in the score or more of years shout was the worst that he had experienced in the score or more of years that he has spent on the coean. The Senegal he says, was sighted just as darkness was closing in, beating up against a freshening northeast gale. By midnight the gale was at its height.

Olson said he soon began to watch for the Senegal's red light. It seemed to him, in his dread of a death at sea, like a ray of hope. Several times he missed the light, when his vessel rode the crest of a wave, but the Senegal was then down in the trough of the seas, and the next time it would appear. The danger increased, and every man had to hang on for dear life. Just before the day began to break the red light of the big ship appeared for the last time. The Senegal rose on the crest of a wave, as a squall more severe than its predecessors came down upon them. The red light gleamed, then went out for an instant. It reappeared for a moment, then was lost altogether.

A Suit Against Chehalis County for Taking Them.

TACOMA (Wash.,) Sept. 20.—Suit has been filed in the United States Circ Court involving the ownership of so railroad rails with a history. The suit is brought by the State Trust Company, a New York corporation, against Chehalis count, W. H. Book, J. M. Weatherwax, C. R. Wilson and John G. Lewis.

19, 1894, the defendants unlawfully obtained possession of and converted to their own use 5000 steel rails belonging to plaintiff and have since that time refused to surrender the property. The rails were valued at $42,000, the amount sued for, and were piled up near Cogmopolis, Chehalis county, having been brought to this coast from Mayport, England, by the ship Abercorn, which was wrecked on the Washington coast in 1887.

She had taken a pilot off the Columbia, being consigned to Balfour, Guthrie & Co. for the Union Pacific at Portland, but the weather was so thick she could not pass the bar and worked up and down the coast, awaiting better weather. In the 19, 1894, the defendants unlawfully ob-the weather was so thick she could not pass the bar and worked up and down the coast, awaiting better weather. In the wreck the pilot, captain and all the crew except three were drowned. The vessel and cargo were abandoned to the underwriters, who sold the cargo through the British Consul at Astoria to A. M. Cannon of Spokane, who intended the rails for the railroad around The Dalles on the Columbia River, in which he, Paul F. Mohr and others were interested.

Those who bought the ship needed money with which to recover the rails, and secured it from the State Trust Company, which thereby secured a lien upon and subsequently the ownership of the property. Chehalis county levied a tax upon the rails, which was not paid, and last June they were sold for taxes to the individual defendants in the present suit. The taxes were about $700 and for this aroust the defendants secured 5000

PALO ALTO, Sept. 20.—The temperance question has become an issue in the university town of Palo Alto. venders of alcoholic beverages, yet the effect of the measures has been felt to a certain degree.

When Palo Alto was selected for the location of the Stanford University it was expressly the wish of the founder of the institution that no liquor should be sold within its limits and to that effect a prohibitory clause is inserted in every conveyance of Palo Alto real estate, which provides that the vendee, his heirs and assigns, shall not at any time manufacture or sell to be used as a beverage, any intoxicating liquor or to permit the same to be done on the premises conveyed. It is also provided that if the vendee, his heirs or assigns, violate the above provision and condition, the indenture shall be void and the premises shall revert to and become the absolute property of the vendor, who may enter and take possession and remove the vendee or any person holding under him.

The population was surprised when the discovery was made several days ago that J. Spencer and C. W. Condon, two of the town dealers, have been carrying on an illicit liquor trade in a small way. Both men have been placed under bonds to appear before the Justice of the Peace and answer to charges of selling liquor. The interesting question of the constitutionality of the prohibitory clause of the conveyance of the real estate will also arise from this affair.

Timothy Hopkins, the previous owner of the land upon which the liquor was sold, will bring suit in the Superior Court of Santa Clara county against the landlords of Cordon and Spencer in order to test the legality of the clause. It is stated upon good authority that the suit will be simply a test case of the question.

Delmas was very hoarse and spoke with effort. He disclaimed Johnson's praise of him as an orator and, referring to Johnson's dramatic closing of his argument, said he should make no speech on bended knee, crying, whining and pleading like a haby. He would make no argument for the applause of a band of hired claquers, who frequented the courtroom. THE "KING" IS FREE.

open negotiations for a new commorcial treaty: "Since the reciprocity arrangements, a brisk trade has been carried on between the United States and Cuba and Porto Rico, composed principally of farm products, which runs yearly into the millions, say an average of $22,000,000 yearly for American exports. It is as much in the interest of the United States as of Spain that the exchange of mutual commodities should not collapse.

the United States as of Spain that the exchange of mutual commodities should not collapse.

"The American sugar-producers do not raise the tenth part of home consumption, and struggle besides under disadvantages of climate, soil and price of labor. Americans, therefore, need our sugar and their refining industries are largely benefited by it, as well as the farming products which find ready market for their surplus in Cuba and Porto Rico. Everything points to the necessity of a fair and equitable understanding, even if it should not assume the formalities of a treaty."

Spain has already freed from the duty all goods which left this country prior to August 27 last, the date the new tariff act took effect. Secretary Carlisle has declined a like concession toward Cuban sugar and other products shipped prior to August 27, but landed in this country after that day. This has created quite an agitation in Cuba. So far as Cuba is concerned, at least, the Spanish authorities, it is said, feel hopeful of accomplishing something in the line of reciprocal trade relations.

THE HUMBUG

Now Stands Revealed in Its Deformity.

Only Those Who Won't See Fail to See It in Its True Form.

The Review of Reviews Points Out the Absurdity of the New Tariff Bill—Framed on Protective Principles,

But Far Interior to the McKinley Law The Protection in Spots - No Broad Statesmanship in It-No Free-traders-The Income Tax the Distinctive Fea. ture How Forty Millions were Placed in the Pockets of the Sugar Trust.

The Review of Reviews thus treats the new tariff bill:
"When in the twentieth century the political and financial historian of the United States sets about the task of preparing his monumental work upon American Tariff Legislation in the Nineteenth Contury, Its Principles, Methods, Operation and Results, he will find it no easy task to compress into one good-sized volume the amazing record of the legislative con-test of 1894 that ended in the enactment of the Wilson-Gorman measure. These long months of struggle have been full of incimonths of struggle have been full of incidents of an intensely dramatic nature. The outcome is apologised for, but it meets with no approval. The Democratic party was placed in power on a platform which declares protection to be fraudulent and unconstitutional, and which promised to snact a revenue tariff. It has proceeded to enact a tariff as truly along protective and discriminating lines as any which the Republican party ever placed upon the statute books. But its principal achievement has been the creation of an income tax system, about which there has never been so much as a favorable hint in any Democratic platform. Coming into power with awful anathemas against the trusts and monopolistic corporations which the Republican party was accused of fostering by its tariff policy, this Democratic Congress has confessedly played into the hands of these very combinations at nearly all the points of crucial test.

"Mr. Wilson and the promoters of the House bill themselves offered and secured from hundreds of amendments after the main bill had been introduced, and the general effect of their amendments was conservative rather than radical. It was on February 1 that the Wilson bill, as variously amended, passed the House and was sent to the Senate. Its history in the Senatorial chamber is too tortuous to follow in detail. With numerous amendments it was reported from the Finance Committee by the chairman, Mr. Voorhees of Indiana. But in the practical management of the by the chairman, Mr. Voorhees of Indiana. But in the practical management of the measure on the floor Mr. Voorhees was, for one reason or another, deposed from leadership and the bill fell into other hands. After long debate it began to be manifest that as it stood it could not be passed. Then it was that Senators Gorman, Brice, Jones of Arkansas, and perlaps one or two others, took the bill in hand and amended it at so many points as to make substantially a different measure out of it. They presented what came to be known as the Gorman-Brice revision in a caucus of Democratic Senators, and obtained its acceptance. They introduced more than four hundred amendments at one time. Besides, making a general increase of the protective duties as fixed by Mr. Wilson and his colleagues, the so-called conservative Senators restored to the dutiable list various articles which the Wilson bill had made free, among these being iron ore, coal, and above all, sugar. But in the practical management of the measure on the floor Mr. Voorhees was, for made free, among these being iron ore, coal, and above all, sugar.

The McKinley act had placed raw sugar on the free list, but had protected the American refining industry by a duty of \(\frac{1}{2} \) deep ta pound upon refined sugar, and had provided a liberal bounty for American sugar producers, both as subsidy to the Louisiana planters and as an encouragement to the promising experiments in the West and Northwest in the production of beet and sorghum sugar. When the Wilson bill was first reported to the House it merely modified the McKinley arrangements by reducing the duty on refined sugar to one-fourth of a cent and by scaling down the bounty on the plan of gradual abolition. But as finally passed by the House, the Wilson bill totally abolished the bounties and placed all grades of imported sugar on the free list. Under the protection accorded for nearly four years by the McKinley law the sugar refiners, who had for a long time been moving in the direction of combination and consolidation, had brought to a high state of practical efficiency a complete organization of refiners as an American Sugar Refiners' Trust. This trust was able within certain limits absolutely to control for their own advantages the prices which the American producers had to pay for this food article of universal necessity. The very fact that such a combination existed fully justified the argument that no special protection should be accorded to refined sugar. Great pressure, however, was brought to bear, and the conservative leaders in the Senate, apparently with the encourciency a complete organization of refiners as an American Sugar Refiners' Trust. This trust was able within certain limits absolutely to control for their own advantages the prices which the American producers had to pay for this food article of universal necessity. The very fact that such a combination existed fully justified the argument that no special protection should be accorded to refined sugar. Great pressure, however, was brought to bear, and the conservative leaders in the Senate, apparently with the encouragement and support of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the administration, finally agreed upon a sugar schedule which, while abolishing all bounties, placed an advancement ax of 40 per cent. on all imported sugars, whether crude or refined, with an additional tax for the benefit of the trust of one-eighth of a cent a pound on refined grades. In anticipation of the final enactment of this or some similar schedule, the trust had been busily buying up and importing, free of duty, nearly all the available supply of sugar in the entire world. Thus it has been estimated that by this speculative operation the trust will have made a clear profit of not less than forty million dollars.

The Demicratis, being successful in the elections of 1846, which was comparatively a revenue and low-rate measure, and which remained in force, with no great change in its policy until the Republicans came into power with the Republicans came into power with the election of President Lincoln, when the Morrill tariff was enacted in 1861. From that time until now the Republican party has been responsible for every tariff or revenue measure that has taken its place upon the statute-books. It was expected that with the return of the Democrats to full control of the government, after a third of a century, a distinctive tariff policy would be inaugurated. But the Gorman-Wilson measure has none of the broad and consistently statesmanalike qualities that belonged to the Walker tariff of 1846. The Gorman tariff places wool upon the

Of the new tariff bill as a whole, it must be said that its makers were not chiefly occupied with framing a measure to bring revenue into the treasury, but rather a measure dealing out protection here and there. Boards were knocked of the McKinley fence at almost every panel around the entire field. At some points the fence remains little changed. At others the change is considerable. But the principle of protection was the guiding principle from beginning to end. The measure is, therefore, constructed essentially upon Republican lines. Withdrawing protection from the wool of the American farmer, while retaining a high tariff tax upon the woolen goods that the farmer needs for his clothing, is as discriminating an arrangement as could possibly be de-

The practical attitude today of Chairman Wilson and Prevident Cleveland does not differ preceptibly from that of the moderate Republican protectionists of the Garfield bys. The conservative, or Gorman-Smith element of Democratic Senators goes further and belong to the axtreme, or McKinley-Harrison wing of Republican protectionists. The Democrats have this year been engaged in maintaining a protective system, with a mere readjustment of the rates of duty. No change of principle whatsoever has been introduced. The Republicans themselves have been trusted to do this with equal, perhaps better knowledge, skill and results. The consequence is that nothing whatever has been accomplished toward the final settlement of our traiff policy. It is not likely, however, that any more tariff legislation can be accomplished during the period that remains of President Cleveland's term. The business of the country, relieved from the uncertainty that has paralyzed activity during the past year, will adjust itself to the new sochedules and do what it can to make up for lost time in the two or three years of certainty that now seem assured.

The incoms tax will be retroactive, in the sense that its first levy will be for the twelve months included in the calendar year 1894. Stated in its simplest terms the income tax applies to all individuals and corporations whose net receipts or clear incomes exceed $4000 a year, and the tax will be levied at the rate of 2 per cent. upon amounts in excess of the $4000 exemption-line. Thus a man whose income is $5000, and will be taxed 2 per cent. upon $1000, and will therefore pay an income tax of $20. The law goes into great detail in its endeavor to explain what is meant by "income," and in its further endeavor to devise a way to make the lax effective. Nevertheless, it is commonly said that rich men will very generally find ways to evade the law, and that only the corporation tax will yield a larg; revenue. If this were true it would be very deplorable. Until it is ascertained to be true the assertion ought not to be made. The income tax in its existing form seems to us an unwise measure; but there is no possible excuse for evading it. It becomes a liability that no honest man can fail to recognize. This particular income tax is class legislation, and seems to us un-American in every aspect of it. We hope that it may be repealed at no distant day.

Ivory white moire and moire antique enjoyed but a short life as the favored material for bridal dresses. The cost may have had a great deal to do with it, but another reason may be that the heavy, rich material was altogether unsuitable for youthful, slender figures. Whatever the cause, it is not now used, and has been replaced by taffeta. This stuff has many good points; it is durable, comparatively chesp, and dyes beautifully, which should recommend it to all, for many would choose a white wedding-dress if they could, by having it dyed, put it to general use afterward. In cut, a bridal dress should be simple, and not too much lace should be used. If the bride is the fortunate owner of some old rare since, it should always be put on in the least conspicuous manner. Neither are too many orange blossoms in good taste.

The bridal tollet pictured herewith is tasteful in every respect. Its material is white taffeta embroidered wish sliver spangles, garlands and applique lace and further garnished with accordion-pleated illusion. Bodice and skirt are made separately and are then joined at the hips, the seam being hidden with appliqued lace. The front of skirt and bodice is strewn with silver spangles and délicate silver embroidery and lace marks the neck. The same embroidery, without iace, ornaments the skirt, acting as border for the spangled part, and also edging the train. The sleeves are slashed to show accordion-pleated illusion, and are also heavily embroidered with silver. Ribbon hows with a few orange-blossom sprays are placed on skirt and bodice.

This silver border in vine designs is the latest thing used to garnish wedding gowns. Gilver spangles, too, serve to brighten up the monotonous white in an agreeable way. Simplicity in dressing the hair is the rule, and the style one usually adopts is the best. At present the veil of white illusion with silver edging is drawn over the face to the bust, but that depends entirely on personal taste. It must touch the deg of the train in back, and may be fastened by jewelry, or preferably with dowers. The once permissible huge bouquet has dwindled down to a few choice sprays.

Gallagher and Buchanan Before Judge Ross.

A Jury Impaneled to Try the Strik-ers for Obstructing the U. S. Mails.

R. H. Wade Gives Evidence Against the Defendants — He Reviews the Details of the Trouble. The Testimony.

The trial of the first of the cases against The trial of the first of the cases against C. T. Buchanan and Thomas Gallagher, two of the most prominent of the A.R.U. strikers, charged with having conspired and, in pursuance of such conspiracy, obstructed the passage of the United States mails on the Southern Pacific Railroad, on June last, was commenced before Judge Ross in the United States District Court Ross in the United States District Court yesterday.

Owing, doubtless, to the fact that it was generally understood that the greater part of the day would be consumed in the tiresome work of securing a jury, there was not a very large attendance of spectators, most of the persons present in the courtroom being jurors and railroad men, who had been summoned as witnesses upon both sides of the case.

The government was represented by United States Attorney Denis, while Messrs. R. J. Adcock and C. C. Bowen, who had been substituted for C. C. Stephens, deceased, appeared for the defense.

when the case was called by Judge Ross yesterday morning, Attorney Wilde Ross yesterday morning, Attorney Wilde appeared on behalf of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, and moved the court to quash the subpoena, duces tecum, issued for R. R. Haines, the local manager of said company, requiring him to produce certain telegrams, upon the ground that it was not sufficiently specific to enable the witness to tell what telegrams he was required to bring with him.

A similar motion was made by R. B. Carpenter, Esq., on behalf of Manager Beardslee of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and the entire morning session was taken up by counsel in arguing the matter.

Company, and the entire morning session was taken up by counsel in arguing the matter.

Upon reconvening at 2 o'clock p.m. the court denied the motions, holding that the wording of the subpoenas was amply sufficient and must be compiled with.

The task of selecting a jury was thereupon proceeded with and occupied the attention of counsel until 3:40 o'clock, when the panel was completed as follows: George H. Henck, George H. Norton, H. A. Osgood, Albert Phalps, E. C. Richey, L. Schofield, J. M. Menefee, Charles F. Stamps, Albert Rozelle, Leo Sanders, E. W. Reid and Louis Roeder.

After the indictment had been read to the jury by Clerk Owen the taking of testimony was at once commenced, the first witness called for the government being K. H. Wade, general manager of the South California Railway Company.

Over the objections of the defendants' counsel the witness was permitted to relate briefly the condition of affairs as regards the railroad in this district in the latter part of June and beginning of July last. It was then shown by him that all the regular passenger trains on his road carried united States malls; but that on account of the strike, occasioned by the refusal of over six hundred of the 1000 employees of the road to handle or haul Pullman cars, it was impossible to operate the road, and for about ten days no mails were carried at all. It was also shown that as passengers were carried through to Chicago over the Santa Fe system, of which his road was part and parcel, it was impossible to run, trains without Pullmans, and that no trains west of Kansas City on that system carried the mails alone.

After going into details with reference to the working of the road, the witness was turned over to the defendants' counsel for cross-examination.

the working of the road, the witness was turned over to the defendants' counsel for cross-examination.

He admitted having first heard of the boycott through the newspapers on Monday, June 25 last, but would not concede that it was to the best interests of his road not to start trains eastward while the strike was at its height in Chicago and other points. He also admitted that some of the employees of the road had offered to run an engine and mail car out during the strike, and that he had refused to allow them to do so. No train to which Pullmans were usually attached was sent out without Pullmans, between June 27 any July 7 last, nor was any petition requesting that Pullmans be left off such trains ever presented to him.

Prior to July 4, when the United States troops arrived, the condition of affairs here was both serious and dangerous, but after that date it was more peaceable. Threats of violence were made and offered to employees of the road prior to June 23, but witness did not care to make any public statement in this connection, as it was very probable that nothing could be proved. He admitted that some of the strikers had volunteered to protect the company's property, as they always did in such cases. The offer of the men to carry mails alone could not possibly have been accepted by the officials for it allowed to district as

The offer of the men to carry mails alone could not possibly have been accepted by the officials, for it allowed to dictate as to what should be carried on one train, they would assuredly want to say what should be carried on another.

Upon redirect examination the witness said that the first through train with Pullmans was taken out on July 8, under a guard of United States troops and deputy marshals.

guard of United States troops and deputy marshals.

The defense endeavored to show that certain patrons of the road had requested witness to run trains without Pullmans, but the court held this to be irrelevant. Superintendent W. B. Beamer was then called, but as the defendant, Gallagher, had left the courtroom, and it was within five minutes of the hour for adjournment, Judge Ross adjourned court until this morning.

Court before Justice Seaman yesterday.

The lads were so small that Justice Seaman could scarcely see their heads over the railing, as they stood up to be interrogated. They were charged with disturbing the peace.

Clifford Maxwell, the youngest of the three, broke down under the ordeal and sat down, while the big tears fell from his eyes.

Stanley Frentz, the complainant, was called, but he failed to appear. The mother of one and the sister of the other two boys stated that they had accidentally broken a pane of glass belonging to Mr. Frentz. An offer had been made to pay for all the damage incurred, but Mr. Frentz had declined to accept payment.

Justice Seaman said the court has no authority to prosecute boys of the ages of the defendants and ordered that they be discharged from custody.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—After a weak opening, the stock market steadied itself quickly and rapidly gained strength, which was the prevailing characteristic of the dealings throughout the rest of the day. The buying was steady, though not in large volume, except in Sugar and Chicago Gas, which were again the leaders in the trading. London was a small seller of the arbitrage specialties, but not to an extent sufficient to affect the market unfavorably, while there was not a little buying for the long acount. The bulk of the purchasing was by the shorts, who were desirous of covering their outstanding contracts, in view of the upward tendency of prices. Currency Moves.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A movement of currency of some magnitude is in progress, the objective point being New Orleans. The bulk of the money is shipped in the regular way by express, but some banks are taking advantage of a 75c rate given by the subtreasury at New Orleans, by which interest is saved, as delivery is made at once and all risk of miscarriage is avoided.

Methodist Conference of bishops, having been elected in 1888.

Bishop Fitzgerald was educated for the law, graduating from the law school of Princeton. He was admitted to the bar and practiced law for several years. In 1862 be gave up his law practice and joined the Newark conference. He at once became successful in the ministry. In 1878 he was made presiding elder, and served successively in three districts. In 1881 he was elected recording secretary of the Missionary Society, in which position he remained until elected bishop, in 1888. His official residence is New Orleans.

The meetings being held under the auspices of the Los Angeles W.C.T.U. at the First Congregational Church, Sixth and Hill streets, are continually growing in interest. The large lecture-room was filled to its utmost capacity to hear Mrs. Allyn and Mrs. Fannie B. McClure, and the selection from Tennyson delivered by Mrs. Anna O. Henderson added much to the interest of the programme.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Josephine Mariatt.

The last of the series is a mother's meeting, to be conducted this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Dr. Rachel F. Reid of Pasadena.

Annual Meeting.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE STOCK-holders of the Times-Mirror Company will be held at the office of the company, Times building, corner First and Broadway streets, city of Los Angeles, on Tuesday, Oct. 2, 1894, at I o'clock a.m., for the purpose of electing a board of directors for the ensuing year and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

MARIAN OTIS CHANDLER, Secretary.

The nineteenth session of the Southern California Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will be held in the WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Ex-Congressgressman Thompson of California, who is now serving his country as Minister to Brazil, has a bill that Congress will be asked to pay. During the late rebellion at Rio de Janeiro, an American named Boynton got mixed up in matters there by trying to use an improvised torpedoboat against one or the other of the combatants. Boynton would have got himself into serious trouble had not some people in Boston, who claim to be his relatives, telegraphed that the man was demented and asked that he be sent home at their expense. WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.-Ex-Congress-First Methodist Episcopal Church, begin-ning Thursday, September 27, at 9 a.m. Bishop James N. Fitzgerald, D.D., LL.D., who is to preside over the sessions, is one of the younger members of the board of bishops, having been elected in 1888. mented and asked that he be sent home at their expense.

Minister Thompsoi had the man put on board the first passenger steamer sailing for Boston, paying for the ticket out of his own pocket. When the man got to Boston it was discovered that the friends there had sent for the wrong man. Their own relative was discovered down in Arkansas; consequently the passenger from Brazil was allowed to go free. The people who had sent for him decilined to pay the expenses of his trip, and the American Minister is therefore out of pocket to that extent, unless Congress chooses to reimburse him. Secretary Gresham fears that there is no authority to pay the bill out of the State Department fund.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles. Sarah J. Ryan, plaintif, vs. Dennis Ryan, defendant. Action brought in the superior court of the state of California, in and for the county of Los Angeles, and the complaint filed in said county of Los Angeles, in the office of the clerk of said superior court.

The people of the state of California send greeting to Dennis Ryan, defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the superior court of the state of California, in and for Los Angeles county, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

This said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree of court, dissolving the bonds of matrifrony now existing between the plaintiff and defendant, upon the grounds of the defendant's wilful desertion of the plaintiff for the period of more than one year last past, and for costs of suit. Reference is had to complaint for particulars.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint cause your default to be entered and will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Several Pomonans have just made arrangements for James Loney's departure tomorrow (Friday) for Santa Barbara for the purpose of collecting as great a number as possible of the rhizobius ventralis for use in their orchards.

The first interest ever developed in the matter in this locality was some months since, when Judge Frank P. Firey made his report upon the work of a small colony sent him last fall from the State authorities, which in turn was published in the Pomona items sent to The Times.

A VICIOUS HORSE.

Late Tuesday afternoon, a vicious horse attached to a road cart and driven by a Spanlard, commenced to kick, buck and attempt to run. Ed Palmer, who was near the scene, came forward to assist in holding the animal, when the creature commenced to paw at him, chasing him quite a distance, even under a shed, which was liferally pulled down, a wheel striking the posts as it came to them, which in turn were pulled aside, letting the roof of the shed to the ground. Besides demoralising the shed and cart, there was no other damage done save the slight injury which the Spanlard received by his fall.

The principal features of the evening at last night's session of the City Trustees were the Board of Health's interview, and the hearing on the protest against the proposed "bicycle ordinance," as made by Dr. Theoda Wilkins, Mrs. Fred J. Smith, Mrs. J. E. Packard and Phil Stein, all of whom, especially the former, made strong-pleas based upon seasonable foundation for more concessions to the bicyclists than are proposed in the said measure.

The principal points of said proposed ordinance are: That all tiding is forbidden on sidewalks between the east line of Garey and the west line of Hamilton avenues, and north line of Holt and south line of Fifth avenues; that riders carry an alarm that must be sounded on nearing street crossings, meeting and overtaking pedestrians, also dismounting in these two latter cases; no riding upon the sidewalks anywhere within the city between sunset and sunrise; and that lanterns be carried at night.

Neglect to comply with these provisions to be punishable by fine of from 55 to 558. half of which is to go to informant.

It was urged that only a few reckless riders could be complained of, and that these would under this measure be the more so in order to escape recognition; that careful riders neither injured sidewalks nor endangered pedestrians; that the proposition to give one-half of fine to informant showed inability to enforce law, thereby suggesting its heavy and unjust bearing; that riders paid taxes and should be entitled to some of the advantages of the city; and that perhaps the board in its endeavors to be just to the pedestrians had stepped a little too far beyond the line, and was unjust to wheelmen, therefore it was hoped that a single decision should be postponed until further investigation could be made, for other localities, where riders were permitted to use the sidewalks at pleasure between 10 p.m. and sunrise (and at other hours with special permit or license) had operated satisfactorily.

The matter was referred to the City Attorney, without definite action.

The High-school department is especially well arranged, so that while it is not leparted in a separate brillding, but little inconvenience is experienced.

The Times correspondent was shown through a portion of the Central building a few days ago, and, while the schools had then been in assion less than a week, the work of the year had been settled upon, and the boys and girls seemed intent upon their studies. In the seventh grade there were seventy-two pupils, and in several of the other grades on this floor, there were neally more than could be bast managed by one ceacher to advantage, yet this inconvenience cannot, at the present time, well be avoided. Later on, it is expected that the crowded condition can be remedied, to a certain extent, at least.

On the upper floor a visit was made to Prof. Wood's science department, the chemical labratory and private kitchen of the science students, where the apparatus had been put in the best of condition for a teason's use.

In the biological daboratory were shells, where, specimens of brains and of submanine Mic, and adjoining was the students' department with pigeon-holes for type of the condition of the science students, where the specimen started—this being the first year that it has been used, and then the work-shop where sets of tools were found complitive for all work in word, glass and th.

THE REPUBLICAN CLUB.

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening in G.A.R. Hall at the regular meeting of the Orange County Republican Club. Considerable business was transacted. After the resports of the various committees had been read; Maj. O. S. Mc-Kelwey, Republican nomines for the Assembly, addressed the club on the political issues of the day. Mr. McKelvey touched upon the tariff question and the Wilson bill, and then paid his respects to the Demotratic, Populist and Prohibition parties. His address was well received.

At the conclusion of the major's address, I. N. Everett, Esq., called attention to the fact that thirteen years ago the nation lost one of its greatest and grandest Presidents, James th. Garfield, by the flendish work of an assassin's hand. Z. B. West, Esq., at once moved that in memory of the ex-President the club rise to their feet and remain standing momentarily. This was done, after which the club adjourned to meet again Wednesday evening of next, week.

When the dam was built the trees and underbrush were left upon the ground when the water filled the basin. As a consequence the vegetation was killed and has been decaying slowly in the water. It is gravifying to note that an effort is about to be made to remedy this evil. The water in the reservoir is now hower than it has ever been before, and it would be an eary task to remove the larger portion of the trees, while the water is down. HIS HEAD AFIRE.

A Joker and a Sunglass Lead to a Lawsuit.

cincinnati, Sept. 20.—A Times-Star special from Trimble, Tenn., says that yesterday Jim Harber and others were sit-ting in front of Simpson's grocery. Bob Jellow drew a sunglass from his pocket and focused it on Harber's uncovered head. The glass did more than was expected. The concentrated rays did not reach Harber's scalp, but suddenly his head was a mass of flames, caused by the ignition of the bay rum on his hair, he having just come from the barber shop.

come from the barber shop.
When his head caught fire he started to run, but Frank Gordon caught and held him while others extinguished the blaze with their hats and handkerchiefs. He would doubtless have killed the joker on the spot had he not been restrained by friends. Today he brought suit against Jellow for $15,000. Physicians say Harber's head will never be adorned with hair.
Jellow is quite well-to-do.

A GEORGIA MURDER.

The Manager of a Woolen-mill is Killed for His Money.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.
ATLANTA (Ga.,) Sept. 20.—Forest Crow-ATLANTA (Ga..) Sept. 20.—Forest Crowley, manager of the Roswell Woolen Mill, was found to day murdered in a thicket near the West View Cemetery. Circumstntial evidence points strongly to Will Myers as one of his murderers. The motive was robbery, as Crowley had $700 on his person yesterday. Myers is missing. He is but 19 years old, and is a member of the Gate City Guards.

Charles Jones, a chum of Myers and a nephew of Rev. Sam P. Jones, the evangelist, has been arrested on suspicion, but declares he knows nothing of the murder.
